

City and county close to services accord

City commissioners, informally polled last week, indicated the city and county may be close to detente on a joint services agreement.

Commissioners termed "reasonable" a proposal by Randall County commissioners to pay the city $18,000 annually for services the city renders, a proposal county commissioners have termed "fair."

The city fathers will meet at 7 p.m. Monday in the community center and are expected to okay the county proposal, presented last Monday by County Commissioner Paul Lindsey during a county session.

All city commissioners were contacted by The News for their opinion of the county proposal, which would end a six-month deadlock between the two governmental entities over contractual services such as rural fire protection, jail facilities, communication facilities and library services.

"It's very reasonable and as far as I'm personally concerned I think it's a reasonable solution for the time being anyway," Jim Christopher, city commissioner, said. "It's something we can work with and they can stand it. It's something from the economic standpoint the city can certainly live with for the time being. I think it's a reasonable approach at this time."

Christopher, along with Mayor Manly Bryan, met with county commissioners John Fulgenzi and Lindsey in negotiating sessions recently trying to work out an agreement.

"I personally think it's a good compromise and as far as I know we plan to put it on the agenda and discuss it," Mayor Bryan said. "I would be inclined to support it."

Commissioner Willis Harrison termed the county proposal "not that far off."

He said he is basically in agreement with the proposal but would question certain facets of the proposal.

H. R. Fulton, mayor pro tem, declined to comment pending a full review of the document.

Commissioner J. Pat Stephens said he expected the commission to accept the proposal.

Lindsey presented the proposal for approval to the county commissioners last week after months of haggling with the city over their contention that in a trade of services, the city was being forced to pay more than its share.

That contention was based on a study by City Manager George

Louder, who concluded that the county owed the city about $19,900 per year.

The current contract between city and county calls for the city to provide with no cost rural fire protection and library service. The county provides jail facilities for city prisoners and communication facilities for city police.

The Lindsey proposal calls for the county to pay $18,000 annually and for the two entities to continue to swap services.

The item has been placed on the commission agenda for Monday evening.

City commissioners are also expected to consider giving authorization to HD&R architectural firm to go into the design phase for a new civic center complex.

Okay was given recently to initial schematic drawings for the complex.

Tax money abundant for Oct.

October remains as the big month for tax collections in the county.

County tax assessor Mrs. Audrey Bruse said Friday collections are running close to the average for years past. She said although the final tally is not in, she expects about 70 per cent of the tax roll to be collected during October.

In 1971, collections in October totalled 69 per cent of the tax rolls and in 1970, collections for the month totalled 76 per cent.

The county offers incentive for taxpayers to pay their taxes in October — a 3 per cent discount.

At least a portion of that discount is available in November and December through the county. A 2 per cent discount is offered for payment in November and a 1 per cent discount is offered for payment in December.

Conway Kuykendall, city and school tax assessor, said total collections for October will not be as high this year as they have been in past years, primarily due to the fact that tax statements did not go out of his office until the 10th or 12th of the month.

But, he said, collections are running about average overall.

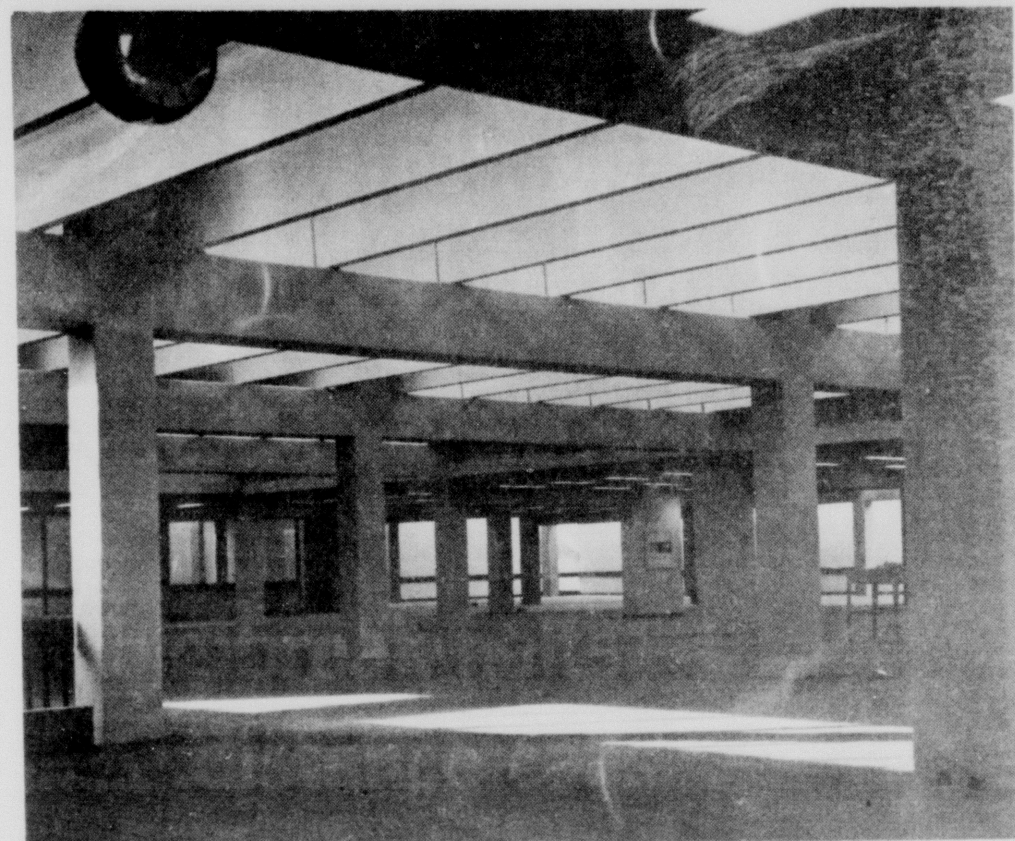

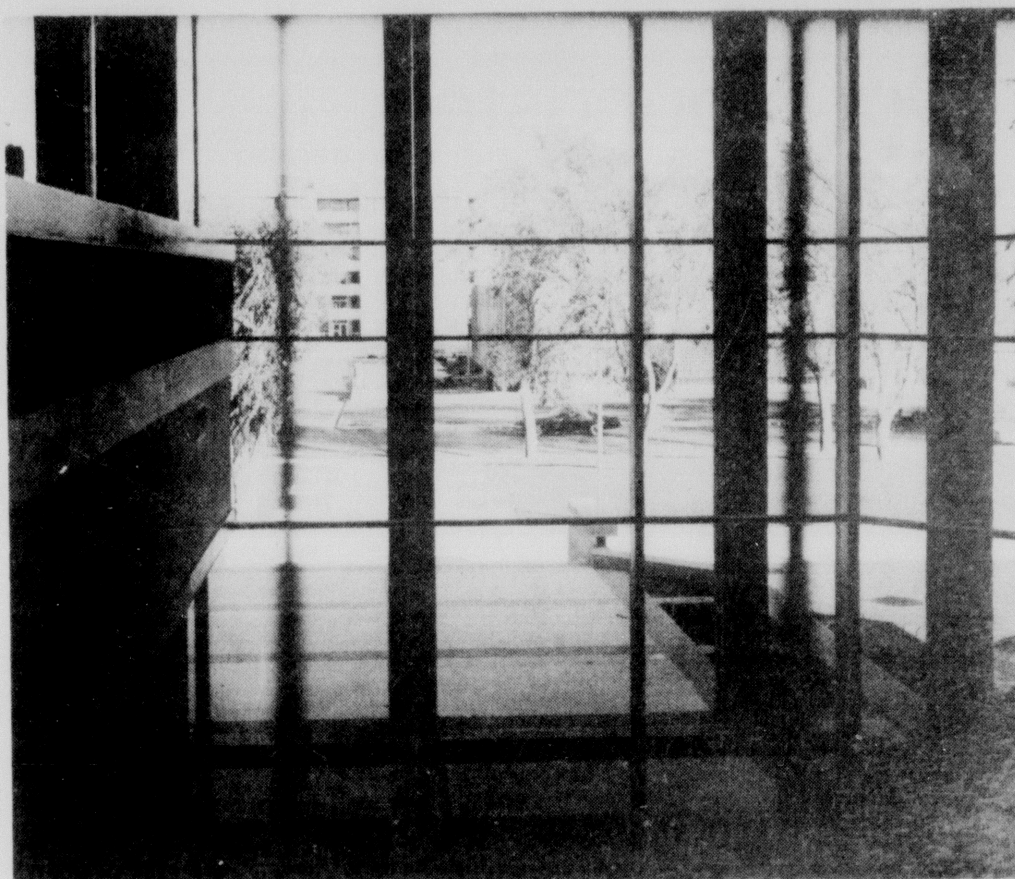

His offices' computerized tax roll was not ready for mailing until late in September, after Canyon school board officials had decided on a firm tax rate for the coming year.

Kuykendall said the statements were delayed because officials were awaiting results of bidding on a new vocational building for the high school campus.

In 1972, for example, the school-city tax office received payments in October totalling over 70 per cent of the tax roll. This year, the per centage is around 25 per cent.

Up to Oct. 31, the office had collected about $278,490 for the school and about $63,596 for the Wide open spaces and lots of light are the assets of the new West Texas State University library which is nearing completion on campus. Skylights provide sunlight for plants in the center of the large building while light filters through darkened glass in the front of the building. Officials hope the building will be occupied by the opening of the second term.

WT Buffs lose to New Mexico, year record shows sixth loss

LAS CRUCES—New Mexico State took advantage of 10 costly West Texas State University turnovers to record a 56-14 Missouri Valley Conference football victory here Saturday night before 7000 fans.

The Aggies scored after four of West Texas State's seven fumbles and recorded another six pointer following one of three Buffalo interceptions.

The Aggies, who avenged a 63-14 West Texas State victory of a year ago, jumped into a 35-0 halftime bulge.

The first Aggie score came with 3:44 remaining in the first quarter when Jack Collins rushed eight yards to climax a 24-yard push following a Buffalo fumble. Cliff Olander converted the first of nine consecutive extra point kicks to give the Aggies a 7-0 lead.

New Mexico pushed 80 yards in 11 plays for the second score with quarterback Doug Baker running over from the six. Baker tallied again on a five-yard run to climax a 27-yard push following another Buff fumble.

Quarterback Joe Pisarcik hit tight end Art Wesberg on a 33-yard scoring pass with 55 seconds remaining in the first half.

On the first play after the ensuing kick-off, Quarterback Don Nava fumbled the center snap for the Buffaloes and Pete Lucas recovered at the West Texas 20-yard line for the Aggies. As time ran out, Pisarcik threw five yards to Cook for the fifth Aggie score.

The Aggies pushed to a 49-0 lead before West Texas managed to get on the scoreboard.

With tailback Rick Schleider and fullbacks Johnny Darden and Clois Burgess doing most of the groundwork, West Texas drove 60 yards in 13 plays to get on the scoreboard with 14:29 remaining in the game.

Quarterback Mike Wartes tossed the final 10 yards to wingback John Lee.

West Texas drove 64 yards for its next touchdown as Billy Pritchett ripped off several key gains. Split end Tracy Dickson tossed the final four yards on an end around play with 5:44 left in the game.

New Mexico State Coach Jim Bradley, trying for every possible point, kept Pisarcik in the game and the Aggies pushed for another touchdown on a drive which covered 66 yards in eight plays. The Pisarcik to Cook combination was good for the final seven points and the final seven yards with 3:02 left in the final quarter.

New Mexico State rushed for 183 yards but had 278 passing and rolled up 24 first downs.

The Buffs managed 253 yards rushing but had only 32 passing, hitting only three of 15 passes.

WT veep to retire this year

Virgil Henson, chief financial officer of West Texas State University for 37 years, will retire at the end of the second term in May.

Dr. Lloyd I. Watkins, president of WTSU, said the university is now seeking a replacement for Henson, now financial vice president of WTSU.

Watkins said advertisements have been taken out on the job in several national publications and that he is in the process of appointing a joint faculty-administration committee on screening candidates.

He said about 60 persons have already submitted resumes for the position.

Henson, who was born in 1910 in Saddle Mountain, Okla., came to WTSU in 1936.

He has served under three presidents at the university, Dr. James Hill, Dr. James P. Cornette and now Dr. Watkins.

Henson was married in 1937 to Ruth Wiggs Henson.

He received his bachelor's degree in 1935 from East Texas State University and his masters degree from West Texas State University. He has also attended the Metropolitan School of Business in Dallas.

He is a 1928 graduate of Gatebo, Okla., High School.

From 1935-36 he taught history in high school at Van Alstyne, Tex.

Henson began his career at WTSU as business manager, a title he held from 1936 to 1963, when his title changed to

Constitution amendments vote is Tuesday; light vote forecast

Fewer than 75 persons voted absentee in the Tuesday special election on constitutional amendments and if that's any indication of voter interest, turnout at local polls will be light Tuesday.

County Clerk LeRoy Hutton has predicted that fewer than 10 per cent of the registered voters in the county will turn out for the election, which sees nine amendments up for consideration.

Hutton anticipates about 3000 voters county-wide at the 13 voting places.

Polls open at city polling places at 7 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. Tuesday. In rural voting places, opening time is 8 a.m. with closing time at 7 p.m.

Several of the nine amendments have been pushed statewide particularly Amendment 1 which raises the salary of legislators to $15,000 annually and calls for annual legislative sessions.

Amendment 6 on the ballot has also been given statewide prominence by county commissioners and judges who have blasted it as a further attempt to usurp the power of county judges.

Local commissioners have combined several voting precincts. Voting places for the precincts are as follows: 1, 2, and 3 at Ralph Switch; 4 at Umbarger; 5, 6 and 7 at Canyon community center; 8 at Lamb Fertilizer Plant; 9 at Gene Howe School; 10 at Tanglewood Clubhouse; 11 at Caprock High; 12 at Alice Landergerin School; 13 and 14 at Southlawn Elementary School; 15 and 16 at Coronado School; 17 and 18 at Paramount School; 19, 20 and 21 at Ridgecrest School.

The Amendments as they will appear on the ballot are:

Amendment No. 1 — Amending Article III, Sections 5, 24, and 49a, and Article VIII, Section 6, of the Texas Constitution, as amended, to provide for an nual regular sessions of the legislature, and to provide an annual salary and per diem for the members of the legislature.

Amendment No. 2 — Amending Article XVI, Sections 50 and 51, of the Texas Constitution, to include within the scope of homestead protection the real property of a single adult person which meets the other requirements of homestead property, and to provide that a family homestead may not be abandoned except with the consent of both spouses.

Amendment No. 3 — Amending Article VIII, Sections 1-a and 1-b, of the Texas Constitution, to extend the $3,000 ad valorem tax exemption to the homestead of unmarried adults.

Amendment No. 4 — Amending Article XVI, Section 59, of the Texas Constitution, establishing certain requirements relative to the enactment of laws creating certain conservation and reclamation districts.

Amendment No. 5 — Amending Section 7, Article XI, of the Constitution of the State of Texas, amending Section 7 to provide that certain counties and cities bordering on the Gulf of Mexico may levy a tax to pay for

Cable break halts area distance calls

Canyon telephone service to all points outside the city was severed for about four hours Friday when a cable connecting the city with Amarillo was cut.

Elvis Wright, local wire chief for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., said a tow cable which routes locally-originated long-distance calls to the central Amarillo switching operation was cut by a machine operator in the Santa Fe Railway yards south of Amarillo.

He said apparently the line was cut about 8:50 a.m. Friday and it took telephone company crews a short period of time to find the sever in the cable.

The cut left Canyon residents without the ability to call Amarillo numbers or any long-distance numbers by direct dial.

Wright said service was to be restored by noon Friday.

Restoring service over the cable was apparently a complicated task.

Wright said the cable contained 200 wires, with each four wires capable of carrying about 12 telephone calls.

Our World Our Youngsters Are TV-Fed

By ANN BROWN

There is a swelling tide of complaints from parents of young children: "Where did my children pick up the language they use, their concepts of right and wrong, and their attitude toward life?"

"Many parents blame the neighbor's children, others blame their public-school teachers, still others blame 'society.'"

There may be a measure of truth in all three accusations, but parents usually overlook the most obvious culprit — television.

The average child has spent more time watching TV than he has with his playmates, his teachers, or his parents. Where else would he get his concepts of society?

A veteran kindergarten teacher says she can quickly detect children in her classes who are addicted to TV — especially Sesame Street. The little TV addicts refuse to think for themselves, and demand instant gratification in everything.

"The standard reaction to hard questions a generation ago," said the teacher, "was 'Don't tell me, let me guess!'" Now the children expect the teacher herself to answer every question she asks — immediately.

The average American child looks over his TV tray at more meals being properly served, hears more family discussions (mostly bad ones), and gets more advice on television than he ever does in his own home.

The language any child uses is determined by the kind he hears most. How many parents talk to their children as much as the TV does?

Foul and profane language has become an accepted part of almost every TV production. And drinking is prominent in even the "good, clean, family shows."

Dr. Welby, his associates, and his patients drink. And almost every crisis on Bonanza, Dick Van Dyke, or Doris Day is resolved by having a drink.

In the happy family scenes, the wife greets her tired husband as he comes home from work with "What would you like to drink," or his favorite alcoholic beverage already in her hand.

Before TV, "Would you like a drink?" meant water to the average American. Now, unless the hostess is prepared to dispense alcohol, she had better say, "Would you like a coke, coffee, or just a drink of water?"

Television makes it appear that drinking is a routine part of every family's life — and certainly the primary concern of every good hostess.

In discussing the merits and demerits of their son's fiancée's parents, one TV character said to her husband, "They look like the sort of people who would not serve a decent cocktail before dinner."

Drinking is not only THE thing to do, but non-drinkers are ridiculed. Naturally, children absorb the idea that drinking is great. They usually change their minds, however, if their parents come in drunk.

By the time they reach adolescence, most kids think parents don't know much anyway; if their parents' standards conflict with TV, they are convinced.

Is it surprising that America has more than 9 million alcoholics?

Oh, but alcoholism is a disease; it has nothing to do with social drinking.

If there were 9 million victims of any other disease running loose in the country, ruining their lives, the lives of their families, friends, and associates, would the situation be ignored?

Suppose we had an epidemic that slaughtered more than 25,000 Americans every year, maimed twice that many, and destroyed millions of dollars worth of property. A state of national emergency would certainly be declared.

At any rate, the source of that kind of disaster would not be glorified daily on TV, and our President would not go on an international broadcast while he shared the "virus" with heads of state.

Should any child be censured for assuming that the President of the United States would set a good example for him to follow? "As the twig is bent..."

Who is really bending the twigs in America?

By CARROLL WILSON

The American people are in a disagreeable mood. They're depressed.

General distrust generated by the Watergate affair is carried over into the economy. While all attention focuses on Nixon, John Doe is fighting a losing battle to keep up with inflation, gasoline prices, grocery prices and a dollar which has less and less value.

The attitude is reflected in Canyon and Amarillo. A businessman worried about how to meet a payroll, an electrician worried about how to afford the week's groceries, tend to be disagreeable generally.

An atmosphere of general distemper pervades all a worried man touches.

Things, let's face it, are not going the way of the average guy. His Dallas Cowboys are losing; a cloud of dismay spreads over his Sunday and Monday. His billfold is moth-eaten; the cloud spreads throughout the week.

The generally disagreeable attitude has spilled over into West Texas State University's varsity athletics.

If the Dallas Cowboys aren't winning, maybe the Buffs can win. But, if the Buffs can't win, what did John Doe, the season-ticket holder, spend his money for — money that was hard to come by late in the summer.

The fact that Gene Mayfield has not fielded a winning football team this year is not of itself enough to warrant the massive hue and cry about hanging his scalp from the white buffalo.

Mayfield, a coach still learning the trade of a college coach with a team still a little green, has received a tremendous amount of criticism recently. Comments concerning the return of season tickets, comments from persons vowing never again to buy a season ticket, are frequently heard.

Can such disagreeableness actually be traced only to the Buffaloes' miserable season record? Or could it be that the general climate of opinion, created out of national scandal and lack of ready cash, has worked against Mayfield?

It is feasible to believe that this year's season ticket holder was not nearly as able to give up his money as he was last year. In fact, he may have taken a gamble with his money this year, a gamble he wasn't wholeheartedly willing to take. Resentment lingers.

Now, the Buffs haven't come through and the season-ticket holder is disagreeable, generalizing his ire with the current national scene to the local scene.

And, partially with that resentment in the back of his mind, that plus the suspicion that next year he's going to have an even tougher time plunking down the cash for a season ticket, the Buff fan uses the team's poor season showing as a rationale not to purchase next year's season ticket.

"If they can't win," he snorts,

"then I won't support them."

When what he means is "They might have a good team next year but I just can't afford the luxury of a Buffalo football game anymore."

Men at WTSU whose profession it is to raise money from donors around the Panhandle report they are on hard times. They have been told flatly that "until you get a winning football team, I'm not giving any more money."

Such a statement is irrational. What it does say is that money is tight and if a donor doesn't want to look like a cheapskate, he can always find a convenient reason not to give. Thus, the Buffs are again the scapegoats.

The fielding of a football team at West Texas State has been criticized by many of the more academically-oriented people in the Panhandle because they say it is simply too expensive. Money is spent which could better be spent fielding a top flight academic program or fielding a student body of about 8000.

Those who defend the fielding of a football team point to the fact that a football team helps get the name of the school before the public. It gives the general public something to identify with, something to shout about.

The inverse is also true. If a winning team brings credit to the school, a losing team brings discredit.

But, if what I've theorized earlier in this column is true, if people are just generally mad and broke, then the fielding of a team should not make any logical difference in the amount of money raised for a president's development fund, or for the students association.

The football team can be argued to be a boon to the university's image when it is winning. And, it can be used as a reason for non-support when it is losing. But, either way, it is used.

As long as university regents and officials believe a winning team is worth the money it costs in terms of the good it does for the university's image, then they must give the Panhandle a winning team.

A losing team competing with groceries in the mind of a disagreeable businessman or electrician is a detriment to the university, no matter how you look at it.

But, is a losing team better than no team at all?

And, is a winning team possible at West Texas State?

It can be conceded initially that as long as WTSU continues to recruit in the Panhandle area, the team will not be a real 10-0 winner. Competition for players is simply too tough from the Southwest Conference and the Big Eight.

Remember back to the days of the late Joe Kerbel. Kerbel was criticized continuously for not recruiting home boys, for the way he treated his players. His real winning teams, teams with 8-2 records drew small crowds. But, they drew a disproportionate share of area griping.

Frankly, in an era when WTSU is laying off professors for lack of students, can it honestly be said that the football team is worth the money it costs?

If WTSU had no football team, what would be the result? Would the result vary if WTSU had a winning football team?

Based on my earlier conclusions, I believe fielding no team today would have about the same impact as fielding a losing team, once the initial shock which would follow demobilization of varsity football had subsided, or a winning team.

Because of the generally disagreeable attitude of John Doe, he'd likely find something else wrong with the university, some other reason not to donate his time or money or support, if football were extracted from the campus.

Because of the generally disagreeable attitude of John Doe, a winning team would probably make no difference. His real reason for non-support of the university cannot logically be based on a football team's record. It must logically be something else.

Don't Want Building

Dear Sir:

It seems our revenue sharing money is burning a hole in our city commissioners' pockets.

I would be willing to bet if the city employees could vote by secret ballot they would rather stay in present adequate quarters and get a raise in pay.

Why does Canyon need a new activities center when we have ready access to several beautiful buildings at WTSU?

Why couldn't this revenue sharing money be deposited in a savings and loan institution to earn interest?

Or why couldn't it be used instead of raising our city and school taxes?

I personally don't want these new facilities with their whopping $1.7 million dollar bill!

And I feel the citizens of Canyon should have an opportunity to vote on this matter.

Just because municipal bonds are not required doesn't mean the voters shouldn't have a say.

Canyon is not a rich town. One of the reasons many people have moved here is because of the lower tax structure.

This fiscal irresponsibility on the part of elected officials can only hurt our town.

Sincerely yours,
Vivian Kay Madewell

How I'll Cast Vote

Dear Editor,

In comparing the sample ballot for the Constitutional Amendment Election to be held November 6, with the 9 proposed Constitutional Amendments Analyzed by the Texas Legislative Council, I was aghast to note that I would have voted in favor of 7 of the amendments and against 2, if I had not read all the wording of the analysis.

After reading the analysis, I will vote for Amendments Nos. 2, 3 and 4; and against Amendments Nos. 1, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9. Most of these amendments seem to clearly usurp the power of the people. It is most urgent that every eligible voter appear at the polls Tuesday.

Travels With Everyman

By ANDY HULL

Until Beauregard, who is a dog, gave us a ride I was wondering how we were going to get through St. Louis to Illinois that same day. Beau wasn't driving but I think he probably influenced his master, whose name escapes me, to let us come along. It could be that he sensed we were going his way; course Beau was happy to see us anyway. It is said better to let slurping dogs slurp, so Beau sat on and between us for a few hundred miles. The driver had a pickup and we were pawed all the way to St. Louis.

Now this might sound ridiculous, but you should wake up in the middle of a cloverleaf (field and intersection) near Springfield, Mo. on the morning after the night when you were standing by the highway with your bare arm out so people could see the white cold thumb.

I have my suspicions that from 1 a.m. til 4 a.m. the cars are on a circular road and only continually roar past. They come up over the south hill and disappear over the hill in the north and then are hustled back to the southern hill. Sometimes it gets pretty dewy in those hills of the Ozarks on an autumn morning; but the grass is soft for sleeping out, unlike some arid areas I can think of.

The Ozarks aren't anything like the Appalachians, in October anyway. I don't mean that they aren't both old mountain ranges — there they are much alike. No, the Ozarks are as different from the Appalachians as green alfalfa from ripe maize. The Ozarks are green and lush; the Appalachians are an expensive experiment in bigger-than-life Kodak carpets. It seems that Eastman Kodak has a long way to go.

The ride through the Pennsylvania Interstate color spectrum is courtesy of Goodman of Pittsburgh, New England tours on a budget. Goodman was going to Boston. This being an impromptu and low budget outfit, cheap equipment such as a thirty horsepower Volkswagen is standard and Pennsylvania is viewed by the cinematic-like driving habits of the low power auto owner. The countryside is a combination of rollercoaster blurs of autumn and a whirling paint color chart, and the explicit concentration of the slow motion camera on Greenbay vs. Pittsburgh vs. Washington vs. Kansas City football.

The deja vu nature of traffic adds to the cinematic effecting of the discovery of Pennsylvania.

The passing of one of the East's best known educational institutions is noted by the marker obviously left in deference to H.G. Wells and his classic War of the Worlds, as a reminder of the strength of knowledge against fear. The marker recalled is pale green mushroom of giant proportions with large legs supporting its mass. It is shying away from its place in the city by its placement in the hills above the city where Penn State thrives.

It is unusual to note that great universities on this jaunt have been seen in the light of public utilities for near the town of South Bend, Ind. there is also a reminder of an institution. These civilized outposts of learning are the Western world's transitory way stations from plantations to urban vexations to cosmopolitan machinations.

For animals anyhow the transition is nerve racking. Beauregard can't exercise his right to the freedom of speech in the suburbs of Chicago without possibly getting a ticket for barking. Luke got a ticket for this although I think that Pety was inciting him to bark. In Cleveland (about which there is little to shout joyously) forms of life are commonly rodentia; squirrels in the suburbs and one small brown mouse about to get a rude awakening by drinking from Lake Erie. In New York City the dogs all run around together (safety in numbers, I suppose) and in the suburbs they eat special prescription food after they are five years old (the dog food salesman says it is a very lucrative business).

You understand that lucrative business is not new to certain cafe-truck stop owners in Pennsylvania where $4 buys a hamburger for Goodman and I and we get the extra bonus of indigestion. The dollar for the Geo. Washington bridge turns out to be worth it because of the awe-some beauty of it and New York freeways at night, especially if one knows that a warm place to stay is only a bit up the road. And now looking back on my first journey across the East I can say I would have never expected to run into the diversity of a participant at the Wounded Knee escape and a friend of Agnew's.

It is a long way from Austin to New York, but not nearly long enough for me. So stay tuned for further journalistic driveings continental style. I figure on at least being able to ride with Willie Brandt and the High Lama of Tibet on my way.

UIL Workshop Set Here Sat.

West Texas State University will host a University Interscholastic League workshop for high school students and teachers Saturday on the Canyon campus.

The workshop will prepare students and teachers for the UIL spring contests in ready writing, speech, number sense, slide rule, journalism, science and one-act plays, says Jack Edmondson, WTSU director of public services.

WTSU faculty members and UIL state directors will serve as consultants for the workshop, co-sponsored by the PESO Education Service Center of Amarillo. The workshop will be in the Activities Center from 9 a.m. to noon.

Dr. Pat Sullivan, chairman of the WTSU English department, and Dr. James Kennedy, state UIL director, will conduct the workshop on ready writing.

Guy Yates, Robert Boyd and Dr. Zell R. SoKelle of the WTSU speech department and Dr. Rex Wier of UIL will analyze demonstrations on persuasive speaking, prose reading and debate in a workshop on number sense. David Lasher, WTSU mathematics faculty, and Dr. Milo Weaver, UIL consultant, will explain how to succeed as a numbers sense coach or competitor and answer questions concerning a sample test.

David Patterson, WTSU assistant professor of mathematics, and Lasher will discuss preparation for the slide rule contest. Journalism students will hear discussions on feature writing, news writing, headlines and editorials. Bill Lee, chairman of the journalism department, Sandra Vail, WTSU journalism instructor, Craig Endicott, assistant city editor of the Amarillo Daily News, and Dr. Max R. Haddick, UIL Journalism director, will lead the discussions.

Dr. Ronnie Waide, WTSU education associate professor, and Leopold Smigelski of the UIL will explain the nature of the science contest and give students a recommended reading list.

In preparation for one-act play competition, Lynn Murray, state drama director of the UIL, will lecture directors on contest management. The WTSU Buffalo Masquers Drama Club will present "Fables" by Jerome McDonough II.

High School Junior High Choirs To Perform In Concert Thursday

The Canyon High School choir under the direction of Tom Jennings will make their fall debut in a concert scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the school auditorium.

Also on the program is a premiere performance by the Canyon Junior High School choir under the direction of Doug McCause. The ensemble will perform two selections for the concert.

The CHS Chorale is scheduled to perform selections from the repertoire to be presented at the Texas Music Educators Association convention slated in February. The Chorale was selected last summer for the honor of performing before state music educators who will be gathering in Houston for the meet.

Programmed for the concert are J. Harold Moyer's "Let Us Sing Unto the Lord," John Bennett's "Weep O Mine Eyes," Ravel's "Lolotte" and William Simon's "I May Never Pass This Way Again." Also scheduled for performance is "Buffalo Gals." Soloist for the latter tune is baritone Richard Smyrl.

The CHS Mixed Choir will be performing Michael Haydn's "Sanctus," Strommer's "An Answer For Our Time" and John Carpenter's "Bless the Beasts and the Children."

The Show choir will also be performing a selection of pop tunes, Jennings said.

Big Brothers Plan Cookout

About 25 Canyon men will be invited this week to a hog cookout followed by attendance at the West Texas State University versus Tampa foot ball game next Saturday.

The cookout and game attendance are sponsored by Canyon Big Brothers in an effort to interest local men in becoming big brothers.

The cookout begins at 5 p.m. Saturday at Conner Park and those attending will be provided free tickets to the Buffalo game against Tampa that evening.

Canyon little brothers will also be asked to attend the supper and game.

"We still need big brothers who are willing to devote some time each month with a boy who needs male guidance," said local Big Brothers President Jim Ashford.

Ashford said there are still little brothers in Canyon who need big brothers.

Winners Named In Tourney

Eddie and Charlotte Baker were gross score winners last week in a scotch foursome golf tournament at the Canyon Country Club.

Jim Lawson and his daughter, Judy, were net winners in the tournament, which saw 22 couples compete for prizes.

Chuck and V. A. Allen were second in the gross score category followed by Charles Harris and Jan Westfall. Cecil Parkhill and Mrs. Andy DeWeese were second in the net score group, followed by Clyde Miller and Virginia Golsen and Dr. and Mrs. Robert Burton.

They were net winners in the tournament, which saw 22 couples compete for prizes.

Fish 'n Fowl

By GARY CONNER

The waterfowl hunters who have been waiting around for the first real northern to bring the geese down can proceed. Some geese arrived last week with the mild cold front, and with the bruiser on Friday quite a number of them should be close, or in the area by the time you read this. Don Logan, who works east of Amarillo, reported flights of geese flying over him for about two hours on Wednesday afternoon. So the goose hunting picture looks good, and will be getting better as the days wear on into November.

As for ducks, last week I was hunting out west of Hereford with a group of early risers, and we enjoyed a successful morning hunt. Included in this TEXAS WATERFOWL, guided hunt were Jack Dillingham and Tom Henderson of Canyon, and Don Logan from Amarillo. The ducks started decoying even before it was light enough to shoot and continued until we limited out around nine o'clock. We were concentrating on Mallards, and finished with 10 eight greenheads. An assortment of pintails, greening teal, and widgeon were also taken.

As we were all standing out near the decoys once stretching our legs, a couple of Mallards came right in and sat down not twenty feet from us. Talk about a scramble for a game!

As we were leaving that lake bottom on our way to the cars, we flushed five cock pheasant, but could only wish that December the 8th got here quicker.

Somewhat, this excitement served as a fitting end to a very enjoyable morning in the outdoors, doing something we all enjoyed doing: shooting ducks over decoys.

Texas Waterfowl guided hunts will be conducted daily into the grain country west of Canyon. The rates are $10 per day for geese or duck. Hunts can be scheduled by calling 353-4527 or by contacting me, Gary Conner. There will also be some good pheasant hunting available when December arrives.

Goose season opened last Monday and will be open until Jan. 20, except for one closed week from Nov. 25 through Dec. 8. Quail season will open Nov. 17 in most Panhandle counties, as will the deer hunting season.

Cowboys Beat Lamar 8 To 0

The Canyon Cowboys, 6th grade kids, Inc., team defeated Lamar last week 8-0 for their final game before going into the Toy Bowl this weekend.

Barry Watson scored the lone Canyon score on a pass play from Jack Hayes. Blaine White made the two-point conversion.

The Cowboy record stands at 4 wins and 2 losses.

Krista White Is Carnival Queen

Krista White

The Halloween Carnival is over, but the Halloween Queen will reign for the rest of the year. Krista White, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.M. White, 11 Hunsley Hills Blvd., was elected to be the queen of the carnival sponsored by the Canyon Study Club.

The voting was done with the use of jars sporting a picture of each one of the candidates on a different jar. One penny in the jar was one vote for the girl pictured.

Krista was sponsored by the University Study Club. She is a cheerleader at Canyon Jr. High School and is in the 9th grade.

Other candidates were Becky Boston, Rhonda Davis, Jackie Skarke, Susan Wright, Stacy McAlpine, Niki Knowles, Terry Cowley, Susan Bonfield, Kim Bagley, and Brenda Hatenhorst. Organizations sponsoring booths for the carnival were Rotary Club, Les Amies, Canyon High School Choir, Home Demonstration Club, Heritage Woman's Club, University Study Club, PTA, Alpha Delta Pi, Alumnae, Beta Sigma Phi, UMYF, Noon Lions, Canyon Dames, Umbarger 4-H, and the Alpha Theta Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi.

The Les Amies sponsored a pennies in the jar contest. Whoever guessed how many pennies were in the jar won a large Raggedy Ann doll. Claire Kuehn won the guessing with 2789 pennies and took the doll home.

The Canyon Study Club expressed their appreciation for the large turnout for the carnival.

Canyon quarterback Ed Lair talks over the situation with Canyon Coach Ron Mills during a timeout Friday night. The Eagles bowed in a fast-paced exciting game to Perryton's Rangers, now leading contenders for the district crown.

9th Purple Still Has Perfect Record

The Canyon 9th grade purple team retained its unblemished record last week with a win over the Pampa Blue and the Canyon junior high 7th grade teams also took wins in 1973.

The 9th grade purple team stands at 7 wins and 0 losses with the 1967 victory over Pampa.

Ron Whitney and Elliot Berry scored touchdowns for the winners in the second and third quarters. Rick Cooper made a two-point conversion in the second quarter and Cooper tossed to Jonathan Hall for another two-point in the third quarter.

The 8th grade white team downed Stanton 32-6 to bring its district record to 6 wins and 2 losses.

Amassing a total offense of 380 yards, the 8th graders scored in the first, third and fourth quarters of the game. Robert Scott scored on a 52-yard run and a 23-yard touchdown pass to Brent Anderson.

David McKay hit in the third quarter for a 32-yard touchdown run and ran every point conversion for the white team.

Scott was named outstanding player of the game while other awards went to Randy Burkhull and Tim May as outstanding offensive linemen. Scott as outstanding defensive back, Jay Morrison and Stan Cranmer as outstanding defensive linemen, and McKay and Steve Zanchetti as outstanding defensive backs.

Scott had 20 carries for 225 yards while McKay amassed 119 yards in 20 carries. Next game for the 8th white is Thursday at 4 p.m. against Pampa Red in Canyon. The 8th grade purple team whipped Hereford LaPlata 34-14 primarily on the running ability of Bill Holladay, who made four touchdowns and one point conversion. Robert Dustman also scored on a 15-yard run for the purple and Tah Keener made an extra points conversion.

Keener was named outstanding player of the game, while other awards went to Vince Price as outstanding defensive lineman, Robert Dustman as outstanding defensive back, and Keener and Holladay took awards as outstanding offensive players.

Mrs. R. A. Nebbett of Canyon, a director on the association's board, attended the seminar.

She said the seminar is a pilot program co-sponsored by PTA district 8 and the association to test the feasibility of preparing notes of older students to teach younger students the dangers of smoking.

The Texas PTA and Christmas Seal group will be eyeing results of the pilot program with the possibility of future promotion of the effort in the whole Panhandle.

An all-day student seminar on smoking and health was held Saturday on the West Texas State University campus in conjunction with an area meeting of the American Lung Association of Texas.

Mrs. R. A. Nebbett of Canyon, a director on the association's board, attended the seminar.

She said the seminar is a pilot program co-sponsored by PTA district 8 and the association to test the feasibility of preparing notes of older students to teach younger students the dangers of smoking.

Seminar Held At WTSU

British Open School System Advocated

The British "open" school system, a vast departure from the rigid standards of education prevailing for centuries there, was described recently to a group of public school educators.

At a seminar on the campus of West Texas State University in Canyon, Dr. Fred Stoker told of visits he and his teacher-wife made to "open" schools in Great Britain last summer.

Stoker, chairman of the Department of School Services in the WTSU College of Education, said he and his wife visited one "open" school in the London area and several in the county of Cheshire.

"The main difference between the open schools and the traditional school system," Stoker said, "is that in the open system all students are kept in their age group; there are no retentions."

Stoker said the theory behind this concept is that the pressures of being "behind" are taken off the student, and there is no punishment for being incapable. Therefore, Stoker said, the student suffers no humiliation at home and can advance at his own speed with children of his own age group.

"For example," he said, "in one school we visited we saw a class of 10-year olds in which four girls were studying high school algebra while one boy was working on second grade mathematics."

Another part of the open school theory is the attempt to make the school surroundings more home-like and familiar to the students, he said.

Individuality is also stressed in the system, Stoker added. All classes in the school are team taught, and each student is given individual attention and progresses at his special speed.

"Kids have a lot of independence at these schools," Stoker said. "Most of the time they work independent of the teacher. That is, they are given their assignments, and the teacher moves on to help someone else."

"There is little wasted time in the open school," he said. "All the students we observed worked at their projects eagerly, because they seemed to be very happy in the learning situation and with what they were doing."

Great emphasis is put on art in the open schools. Each one is equipped with materials for all kinds of creative work. One of the schools the couple visited had a large art media center as part of the physical plant.

The school buildings themselves are quite unique, Stoker said. Most of them are constructed with a large open area located in the middle of the plant. Some alcoves, curtained areas and bunks provide privacy for small groups.

"The buildings are carpeted and have acoustical ceilings installed to make the school more livable," he said.

Few teachers employed at the open schools have college degrees, Stoker said. There is, however, a three-year teachers college where one may obtain a certificate. Following that, a teacher must be invited to study for a bachelor's degree.

Stoker, who has studied the open school concept in the United States, said he feels this would be a good system to consider. Many of these ideas are coming into practice in this country, he added.

"Right now there are only a few schools of this type across the nation, although it is not extremely new here," Stoker said. "However, I think it would be beneficial to have open schools and traditional public schools in the same district and let the parents and pupils choose the one they wished to attend."

Some cities in Texas which have employed some open school ideas are Corpus Christi, San Antonio, Houston and, in the local area, Hereford, Plainview and Dumas, Stoker said.

WT Musical To Begin

"South Pacific," the famous Broadway musical comedy and movie, comes to the West Texas State University stage starting Thursday.

The antics of fun-loving sailors and a group of nurses on an island in the Pacific Ocean during World War II will be performed by a cast of 65 students in the Branding Iron Theatre of the Fine Arts Building on the Canyon campus.

A special 25-member orchestra will play the score from the Richard Rodgers, Oscar Hammerstein 2nd and Joshua Logan hit, which runs Nov. 8-11 and 15-17.

Performance times are 8 p.m. Nov. 8, 9, 15 and 16. There will be matinees at 2 p.m. Nov. 10, 11 and 17.

De Becque is a widower with two small children, played by Jamie Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Davis of Canyon, and Misty Vars, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Max Vars of Canyon.

Shelly Hamrick, sophomore speech major from Dallas, will play Ensign Nellie Forbush, an impressionable small town girl who falls in love with De Becque.

Lt. Joseph Cable and Laet, a Polynesian beauty, are another pair of lovers in the story. They are played by Gene Morrison, junior music education major from Canyon, and Julie Brantley, freshman music major from Canyon.

Liat's mother and chief souvenir salesman on the island is Bloody Mary, played by Aletha Webb, senior music education major from Amarillo.

Luther Billis, the mischievous ringleader, is played by Lee Kendle, junior music major from Amarillo. Ronnie Williams, junior speech major from Amarillo is the "tuddy-duddy" Capt. George Brackett. Randy Clements, freshman speech major from Hereford, is Commander William Harbison.

Production director, Royal Brantley, associate professor of music, calls "South Pacific," a "great deal of fun and a fine Rogers and Hammerstein musical that is beautifully balanced between comedy and drama."

Brantley has worked with the production since 1959. Other directors include

City Federated Clubs Meet For Dinner Mon.

The five Federated Women's clubs in Canyon will be getting together Monday evening in the Canyon Junior High School cafeteria at 7 p.m. for the Canyon City Federation dinner.

Featured speaker for the dinner will be Mrs. Don Max Vars, Top of Texas District President. The Canyon High School Show Choir under the direction of Tom Jennings will provide the entertainment. Mrs. Korkye Martin of Opportunity Plan, Inc., will give a presentation for the Canyon division.

Canyon federated clubs and their presidents are the Sue Hite Club — Mrs. Virginia Allen, Woman's Book Club — Mrs. Nell Findley, University Study Club — Mrs. Marilyn Dees, Heritage Woman's Club — Mrs. Harriett Brandon, and the Canyon Study Club — Mrs. Susan Dolle.

The Canyon clubs are members of the Top of Texas District, one of 14 districts in the Texas Federation, that includes everything north of Randall County. District project for all the clubs in the district is the Lola B. Mundy Scholarship Fund for Opportunity Plan, Inc.

The state project is the preservation of the Big Thicket. Some of the projects that the Canyon federated clubs have been involved with are the Panhandle - Plains Auxiliary Mental Health Association in Amarillo, park beautification, pornography legislation, student scholarships, CHS grand piano account, Randall County library, Canyon Girl Scout House, Panhandle Heritage Foundation, Committee of Citizen of the Year Award, voting pledge and work in polls, Randall County Livestock Barn, playground equipment, and hospital equipment for Neblett Memorial Hospital. In addition to all these projects, the city clubs have singled out Opportunity Plan, Inc., as the chief project for the clubs.

Federated clubs have been in existence since the 1890's, and were started in Canyon almost fifty years ago. The original purpose of the first woman's club was self-education and association for mutual aims. These purposes are still the same today, and are carried out through courses of study for each club and in the projects they participate in.

All Around The House

By BECKY HALL
County Extension Agent

The prime topic of conversation today is not baseball or a movie star's divorce — it's the rising cost of food! And the next topic is what to do about high prices. How can a woman save money and make sure her family eats well?

The task is definitely not easy. Of course most women follow the tried and true hints such as shopping with a list to avoid impulse purchases, buying less tender cuts of meat and buying what's on sale or special. Women with freezers buy when the price is lowest and then freeze.

But one of the easiest ways to waste money is to waste food. Leftovers that eventually find their way into the garbage can mean a broken food budget. Instead, when leftovers become "plan overs" it means that food and money are not wasted.

As an example, take leftover vegetables. If they're put in the refrigerator in a plastic container, they'll remain fresh and flavorful. Sealed tightly, asparagus that's left from one dinner might be programmed for an appearance as a gourmet salad — asparagus vinaigrette — on another day. Advance planning is the key.

If there's a small amount of ham left over, it can be cubed and stored in a handy plastic container, ready to be added to a casserole. If the casserole is a mixture of meat, cheese, French fried onions and a convenient soup, the woman who works can prepare it after she comes home from work. Then time also can be saved — along with money!

Even juices that are left over can be "plan overs" — combined as fruit punch to be served after school. Nothing goes to waste so that no money is lost.

Remember, there's not a successful restaurant in the world that wastes food!

On November 6 VOTE AGAINST

Vote against AMENDMENT NO. 1

Texas does not need the vast expense of annual sessions of the Legislature.

Texas needs less legislative interference and laws instead of more.

Vote against AMENDMENT NO. 5

The Texas coastline is a very delicate ecological phenomenon. Any development of it threatens its very existence. Making it easier for people to live along the shore by giving them artificial protection will only hasten the destruction of one of Texas' most beautiful natural resources. Sea walls and breakwaters are also very destructive by themselves.

Vote against AMENDMENT NO. 6

Too much of our local authority has already been taken away from our County officials.

Keep our probate affairs at home — with our own County Judges.

Vote against AMENDMENT NO. 7

Texas already has issued $400 million in bonds and obligations, which the Texas Constitution has authorized at an interest rate of 4½% charged to the Veterans. If this amendment is approved, the interest rate will be raised to 6% even on the amount that has already been issued.

Vote against AMENDMENT NO. 8

Taxpayers of Texas cities and towns are already overburdened, and this amendment creates the possibility of more taxes without adequate approval by the people.

Vote against AMENDMENT NO. 9

If you wish to preserve the free enterprise system, which saves money for the consumer and taxpayer, vote against this amendment because its approval would result in higher costs which eventually must be paid for by the consumer and taxpayer.

Rev. and Mrs. A.J. Pettit show the gifts they received when Rev. Pettit was elected as the Most Appreciated Pastor for the North Plains Assembly of God Churches. Mrs. Pettit was given a dozen red roses and Rev. Pettit received a trophy with the new title on it.

Rev. Pettit Elected As Most Appreciated Pastor

Rev. and Mrs. A.J. Pettit have been elected to receive the title of The Most Appreciated Pastor for the North Plains Assembly of God Churches.

Voting was done by a point system. The members of the congregation do favors for the pastor, or give gifts or love offerings, or give gifts or love offerings to the pastor. Certain tasks and/or favors have a point value, and these are added up for the total that elects the most appreciated pastor.

In competition with much larger cities, such as Amarillo and Borger, members of the Canyon Assembly of God Church rounded up a grand total of points that exceeded 800,000. In gifts alone, the congregation gave $6,841.57 worth, and $649.30 in love offerings. One penny equaled one point in the scoring.

Members of the congregation also made over 450 visitations. A visitation is going door to door, inviting people to come to church. Each visitor to the church netted 300 points, and there were approximately 75 visitors. Letters and cards to the pastor and his wife also counted and they received, and are still receiving.

County To Eye Joint Law Office

A proposal to combine the county sheriff's office with the Canyon police department will be discussed Monday by Randall County commissioners.

Commissioners, scheduled to meet at 1 p.m. Monday in the courthouse, will meet with Sheriff Cliff Longest on the proposal.

Commissioner Jim Fletcher has been primary advocate on the commission for the combination of the two law enforcement offices.

Commissioners are expected to meet again with Bob Davis of Columbian Securities, concerning financing of a new annex in South Amarillo.

Davis met with the county last week and outlined a proposed method of financing, which would close the avenue of voter referendum.

Commissioners recently purchased seven acres of land in South Amarillo for a new annex of the courthouse.

No School Friday: Local Teachers To Attend Meet

All Canyon Public Schools will be dismissed Friday so that teachers and administrators may attend the annual convention of the District XVI Texas State Teachers Association to be held in Amarillo.

According to Ruth Holladay, director of secondary curriculum in the Canyon schools, several local educators will play prominent roles in the meet.

The convention gets underway Thursday evening when the House of Delegates meets at Amarillo High School. Local members of the body include E.B. Posey, Carroll Killingsworth, Cindy Capps, Mary Townsend, Jane Westberry, Dr. Fred Stoker, Herman Demus, Luther Lawless and Ada Crager.

Dr. Jack Nance of the West Texas State University College of Education will present a report from the Human Relations committee.

Luther Lawless, principal of Gene Howard Elementary, will be presented as a candidate for treasurer of District XVI at the meeting.

Other local educators who are on district committees are Posey, Demus, Flora Phillips, Mary Jane Reeves and Dr. Jim Kidd. The theme for this year's convention, "A Unified Commitment to Youth," will be developed in the general session of the meet to begin at 9:30 a.m., Friday in the Amarillo Civic Center Coliseum. Dr. Gerald Fisher, superintendent of schools in Hot Springs, Ark., will be principal speaker. Widely known for his publications and lectures, Dr. Fisher will speak on the topic, "Love in the Classroom."

Following the general session, sectional meetings will be conducted. Local residents to play key roles in the meetings are Cecilia Szydlowski, chairman of the cafeteria section; Ruth Holladay, speaker for the cafeteria section; Hazel Strickland, and Bonnie Gist, officers of the Council for Exceptional Children; Mary Jane Reeves and Jack Nance, officer and program leader respectively for the Human Relations section; James Hare, chairman of the Industrial Arts section; Donna Wilson, officer of the Intermediate Music section; Dave Corley, officer of the Secondary Principals section; Ocoee Holt, chairman of the Texas Association of Educational Technology; Berdene Byars, officer of the Texas Educators Secretaries Association, and Robert Spawn, speaker for the Cooperative Vocational Training section.

Faculty members and students in the Canyon schools will also take part in a number of group presentations.

The Canyon High School show choir under the direction of Tom Jennings will perform for the school secretaries group.

CHS students will present demonstrations of folk music for the Intermediate Music Educators group.

Students and faculty members of the WTSU art department are scheduled to present demonstrations in new art techniques before area art teachers.

Money received from the sales will go toward financing the senior gift for the graduating class of '75. Proceeds will also be used to fund a junior-senior banquet slated in early May, Mrs. Brantley said.

Most of the junior class participated in the three-week magazine-selling drive, and all those selling over eight subscriptions received some kind of prize for their salesmanship, said Mrs. Royal Brantley, junior class sponsor.

Also topping the class was Russell Killingsworth, who was awarded a Panasonic Television set for his money-making efforts.

Also topping the class with over 60 subscriptions sold was Penny Peckenpaugh, who won a tape deck for her salesmanship.

Arlene Koch, who sold 54 subscriptions, and Jo Beth Price, who sold 53 subscriptions, also walked away with top prizes.

Arts and Entertainment

Through the Looking-Glass

By ANN MELIN
West Texas State University may just be on the threshold of a renaissance in the arts.

The atmosphere in the art department was euphoric this week as students and faculty celebrated the approval of a new Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Commercial and Studio art. The approval came Wednesday after a meeting of the Coordinating Board of the Texas College and University System.

Students and faculty put their graphic talents to work in making posters commemorating "The Birth of the B.F.A." which depicted the halls of the Fine Arts Building.

Fellow FAB dwellers in the music and drama departments were invited upstairs for a celebratory chili supper Friday afternoon.

In the center of all the excitement was an elated Dr. Emilio Caballero, a man who doesn't mind throwing scholarly reserve to the winds when he's in jubilant spirits.

"It's as if our department here has been reborn," he declared triumphantly. "There's a whole new spirit abroad."

The new degree will consist of 81 hours of art, 30 of which will be at the freshman and sophomore level. Although the B.F.A. calls for the addition of 33 new courses, Dr. Caballero and his staff have ingeniously devised a curriculum of multi-level classes in which several of the courses may be offered at the same time, in the same room and under the same instructor. No additional funds or faculty will be needed. A $500 yearly expenditure for new equipment was approved for the program.

While in the past the focus of the department was on teacher education, now the emphasis will be placed (and rightly so) on training artists.

Since employment opportunities for art teachers in the public schools have been virtually saturated, the art department faced obsolescence with its teacher-based program.

The B.F.A. program, according to Caballero, will be the "salvation" of the art department.

***
Promising beginnings in art are also abroad in the West Texas

State University Activities Center.

Upstairs, past the blaring television set, through the poolroom and just to the right is The Gallery, an exhibit hall recently opened by the Student Activities Council.

The Gallery will be a showcase for student work of all kinds, according to Allan Grimes, chairman of the SAC Fine Arts Council.

Any student wishing to exhibit and/or sell his works may submit them to the council. The works will be hung in The Gallery for a three-week period. Sales will be on a consignment basis, Grimes said.

Works in all mediums will be accepted, including paintings, three-dimensional work, photography and sketches.

According to Grimes, The Gallery will serve the dual purpose of providing exhibit opportunities for talented artists as well as offering students and residents more exposure to different kinds of art.

With the Fine Arts Building almost bursting at the seams, even art students haven't been able to get the exposure they've deserved for their work. The only exhibit space in the building is the small Formal Lounge, where most of the student one-man shows are currently being held. Hopefully, The Gallery will become the much-needed outlet for young talent at the school. The exhibition hall is tentatively scheduled to open its student shows on Nov. 17.

Hanging through Friday in The Gallery are the flashy posters and lithographs of that guru of pop art, Peter Max.

Born in Berlin, reared in Shanghai and Israel, Peter Max brings to his work a melding of Oriental and Occidental influences. Add to that blend his training in astronomy at the University of Haifa, and one has an artist of cosmic proportions.

After five years of intensive study at the Art Student's League, the Pratt Graphics Center and the School of Visual Arts, the pop artist opened the Daily-Max studio which flourished for two years. During that time, Max won no less than 68 awards for excellence in typography, illustration, and design.

At the height of his success, Max decided to go into a kind of monastic Buddhist retreat in order to "strengthen" those Far Eastern influences that permeated his early commercial designs.

Reemerging on Madison Avenue, Max virtually transformed the commercial world with thousands of drawings, patterns and experimental ideas for household and other products ranging from stationery to furniture.

He then collaborated with scores of companies and the results can be seen on hundreds of Max-produced products for practically every major industry including food, apparel, accessories, home furnishings, publishing, electrical appliances, toys, recreational equipment and paper products.

Myself, I dump my cigarette ashes into a Maximized ashtray.

Max is as familiar to the average person as he is to the art community, identified by his name as well as his work. Bold images, warm pure colors, clean surfaces and precise patterns characterize his creations. His symbols are delightfully whimsical. Stars, planets, rainbows and flowing lines reminiscent of Art Nouveau recur in his paintings, drawings and sculptures.

The Max lithographs now on display in The Gallery sell for about $35 to $75. They are original.

The posters, which beckon viewers to do everything from "read more books" to "turn an old man on" are copies that sell for about $25 unframed. Some of the designs are familiar; one may have seen the same thing at the local head shop selling for about 50 cents.

The $25 purchases the original Peter Max signature at the bottom of the poster.

Perhaps all of this newborn vitality in the arts at WTSU may someday foster a hometown artist with a $25 John Hancock. Which is a good case for buying student works right now, while their signatures aren't worth the inflated paper price they're written on.

Papers, Talk Due WT Geology Prof.

West Texas State University geology professor Dr. George B. Asquith will present a paper at the November meeting of the Geological Society of America in Dallas and the paper will be published in the society's publication in December.

Another paper will be published in the November issue of the Journal of Geology.

The papers stem from research Asquith is conducting under a WTSU organized research grant on tertiary lamprophyres.

The paper to be presented to and published by the Geological

Society of America deals with "High Viscosity Conglomerate Channel Deposits in a Tertiary Lamprophyre Sill, Sacramento Mountains, New Mexico."

The paper to be published in the Journal of Geology is concerned with "Flow Differentiation in Tertiary Lamprophyres (Comptomites) Sacramento Mountains, Otero County, New Mexico."

Asquith said two varieties of lamprophyre are found in New Mexico and Colorado and one paper expounds a new theory on their origin.

Eagles Yield To Perryton 20-17

A pass interception with eight minutes remaining in the game halted Canyon's Eagles in a scoring drive and set up the touchdown which led Perryton's Rangers to a 20-17 victory Friday night and pushed Canyon out of contention for the district crown.

It was the only pass of the night intercepted by the Rangers but it was a break which put a virtual finish on a dismal season and district record for the Canyon Eagles.

Playing their best game of the season, the Eagles overcame the bad breaks which have plagued them throughout the year through the first three quarters of play and then succumbed to a 15-yard penalty followed on the next play by the Ranger interception of an Ed Lair aerial.

The Eagles, leading the Rangers by a 17-13 margin going into the fourth quarter of play, began a series of downs on their own 11.

The passing of Garre LaGrone and Jimmy Ward brought Canyon to Perryton 35 yard line in what fans believed to be the clinching score for victory.

With a third down situation, Ward went over the left side for eight yards, just shy of the first down, but the play was nullified by a 15-yard Canyon penalty which put the ball back on the 47.

Lair, on the ensuing play, fired a bomb over the center of the line and it was plucked by Robert Palmer, a red-suited interloper, brought down on the 42.

With 8:09 remaining on the clock, Perryton took possession and rammed down field for their final score, chewing up six minutes of the clock in the process.

They scored on a Jim Dear pass to Russ Elledge for 16 yards with 2:05 remaining, and the score at 20-17 in favor of the Rangers.

A valiant Canyon effort to use the last two minutes to best advantage proved not enough as the clock ran out on the Eagles as they pressed to score from 13 yard line.

It was a big win for Perryton, which sees its hopes for the district crown remain alive.

For the Eagles, who beat Dumas last weekend, the game was a bitter loss. The Eagles have only two wins and a tie to show for the season, a season which has posed a formidable number of AAAA opponents.

Canyon's initial score came with 4:45 remaining in the first quarter as the Eagles drove from their own 29 to the Ranger 15 yard line.

Lair stepped there and faced with a fourth down situation, Coach Ron Mills sent ace kicker Scott Wilson into the game to boot a 15-yard field goal to put the Eagles on the score board 3-0.

Eight minutes later, the Rangers began from their own 5-yard line for the first scoring drive, a drive dominated by their 6-1, 196-pound quarterback Dear. Dear passed and ran all the way to the Canyon 16, then kept the ball himself around the end untouched for paydirt with 3:17 left in the half.

Canyon rallied on their next possession after receiving the kick-off at their own 31.

A Lair pass to Brad Martin for 54 yards set the stage for a Lair run for one yard and the touchdown with 2:07 remaining.

When the clock ran out the Eagles owned a halftime edge of 9-7.

On their first play from scrimmage in the second half, Canyon back Gary Bednorz fumbled the ball into the waiting arms of a Ranger and set up the second Perryton scoring drive.

Nine plays later and Dear again dove through the Eagle line for a six-pointer. A run attempt was no good and the Eagles trailed 13-9 with 7:17 left in the third quarter.

Canyon maneuvered the ball well on their next possession, all the way from their own 35 to paydirt. Adrian Foil carried around right end for the three-yard scoring run. With 2:46 remaining, the Eagles held a 17-13 lead.

Lair had a record number of passes during the outing, tossing a total of 23 passes and completing 12. Ward tallied 109 yards on the ground to again lead Eagle ground gainers. He was followed by LaGrone with 20 yards.

Dear was leading ground gainer for the Rangers with 60 yards.

The Eagles meet the Muleshoe Mules in their final game of the season at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Kimbrough Stadium here.

Gemütlichkeit, Atmosphere Of German Sausage Festival

By ANN MELIN

There's a lot more to Umbarger's German Sausage Festival than just good eating, residents say. There's that feeling of — how can you say it in English? Gemütlichkeit.

"Ah, yes, Gemütlichkeit," mused Mrs. Charles Beckman of Umbarger. "That's a good way of describing the atmosphere of the Festival. But I just don't know exactly how to define it in English."

Ben Koch of Umbarger agreed it was an elusive term to capture in English, but that it nevertheless epitomized the feeling of the Festival. "It could be defined, I guess, as a friendly, relaxed way of feeling," he suggested.

"It's a feeling — a good feeling — of well-being, of warmth, of easy-going fun and joy of living," offered Dr. Hubert Oppe, chairman of the West Texas State University sociology department and author of a monograph dealing with the history and people of the Panhandle's unique German-Catholic community of Umbarger.

"Gemütlichkeit" might be the proper way of describing the feeling of the residents of Umbarger these crisp autumn days as they go about preparing for their now-famous annual festival, scheduled for Sunday, Nov. 11 at St. Mary's Parish Hall.

"Gemütlichkeit" almost certainly pervaded the atmosphere along with the smell of fresh shredded cabbage last month as women and men of Umbarger russed up some 230 gallons of sauerkraut for the annual event.

And the German word, no doubt, will also capture the feeling of Umbarger folk when they get together again next week to prepare some 2,200 pounds of sausage for the occasion.

Now in its 21st year, the Umbarger German Sausage Festival has become a veritable institution in the town. Although one of its primary purposes is to raise money for church and community projects, most Umbarger residents agree that the Festival is much, much more than a money-making venture. It provides an opportunity to bring the people of the community and the area together in a wonderful spirit of, well, gemütlichkeit.

In earlier days, the Festival was handled primarily by the church. The women of the Altar Society were the master planners. But as the Festival grew in popularity, the entire community — men and women alike — became involved in the months of planning and preparation for the wingding.

That festival spirit that Umbarger residents have trouble describing in words caught the attention of Dr. Oppe when he was delving into the history of the small Texas town.

"From the very beginning," he wrote, "the social life of Umbarger pioneers centered around their church, neighbors and home. The life of a farmer does not provide for extensive recreation, but its very scarcity as well as the loneliness of the prairie made a get-together especially meaningful and was enjoyed to the fullest."

Before the Sausage Festival came into being, the church would sponsor an annual picnic and dance in celebration of the Catholic holiday of The Assumption. Fried chicken and beer were included on the menu for the occasion. The Charles Beckmans are among the Umbarger residents who recall the picnics as "wonderful times."

Father Andrew Marthaler, pastor of St. Mary's Parish from 1948 to 1958, has been attributed with coming up with the idea of substituting German sausage and sauerkraut in place of the fried chicken.

"Since we were a German community, he said it would be more fitting to serve German food for the occasion," said Mrs. Beckman. She also said that Father Marthaler was responsible for "putting a stop to the beer-drinking" at the annual affairs.

It was decided that the Festival should be held on the Sunday closest to Armistice Day, according to Mrs. Beckman.

The Armistice that ended hostilities between the United States and Germany during World War I has more than usual significance to Umbarger residents like the Beckmans.

"There were a lot of raw feelings in those days toward people who were German or German-speaking — who had anything to do with Germany," Charles Beckman recalled.

Beckman can still remember the days when "sauerkraut" was a forbidden word in the United States because of its connection with Germany. "Pickle cabbage" was the term Beckman said sauerkraut was known as during the war years. "Liberty cabbage" also appeared on sauerkraut cans in those days.

How has Umbarger retained its distinctively German character throughout the years?

The historical accident of Catholic missionaries and colonizers in conjunction with land companies who saw in German settlers a better than average risk for their investments made it possible that Umbarger became a German-Catholic settlement, Dr. Oppe wrote.

"The Umbarger people themselves then carried on from there by getting their own relatives and friends from the old country; by marrying largely into other families within the community or into German-Catholic families in nearby communities, and by adhering closely to customs and traditions of their forefathers," Oppe wrote.

Umbarger is still something of an anomaly in the Panhandle. It is one of the few Catholic communities in the "Bible belt" region. And much of its German heritage remains to this day intact. In many families, especially among the old-timers, German is still spoken at the home.

Mrs. Beckman recalls that ties with relatives living in Germany were renewed shortly after World War II. After the occupation of Germany by the Allies, widespread poverty and devastation wrought extreme hardships for the German people. It was at that time, Mrs. Beckman recalls, that the people of Umbarger began receiving letters from their German relatives asking for help.

The citizens of Umbarger responded to their relatives' urgent pleas for aid by sending boxes of food and clothing overseas.

"And they never forgot what we did for them," Mrs. Beckman said. "Lots of them later came to visit Umbarger, and some of our residents would go over to Germany and stay with these relatives," she said.

As of 1973, those ties between Umbarger and Germany are still binding. Last summer, several Umbarger residents entertained friends and relatives from the old country.

Television, the automobile and other technological advances have tended to blur the distinctive German character of Umbarger, as they have in other American ethnic communities. But as long as there is an annual German Sausage Festival in the town, chances are Umbarger will hold on to some of its ties with the old country.

In recent years, other Panhandle communities have watched the success of Umbarger's festival and have initiated "sausage festivals" of their own. But none are as "authentically German" as Umbarger's own, according to Mrs. Beckman.

In the first years the festival was held, the event was attended primarily by residents, she said. But as word got around, more and more out-of-towners began turning out for the occasion. Last year, about 3,000 people from all over the Panhandle were served, Mrs. Beckman said.

This year's menu, in addition to the famous sausage and sauerkraut, includes homemade bread, mashed potatoes and gravy, relish dishes, green beans, apple sauce and cherry pie. Tickets are priced at $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12. Children under six will be served free of charge.

A country store, stocked with homemade bread and other food items will again be a feature of the festival, along with a bazaar offering a variety of community-made needlework.

The festival culminates at 8:30 p.m. with a dance for young and old alike in the Parish Hall. Music, provided by Tiny Lynn and his band, will include everything from German polkas and waltzes to the latest in American pop tunes.

Now that Umbarger is wet for the first time in 73 years, a lot of folks have been wondering whether German beer would now be reintroduced as a companion to the sausage and kraut.

The answer is no, according to News columnist Reba Raef. In order to serve the traditional German brew, she said, the church would have to obtain a liquor license. And that for now, is strictly out of the question, she said.

For those who attend this year's Festival, however, there will be plenty of sausage and kraut to go around. And a liberal sampling of "gemütlichkeit" is promised as well.
